ROLL OF ARMS

OF

THE THIRTEENTH CENTURY.

My dear Franks,

As no one appreciates more justly than yourself the value and importance of early heraldry in archæological pursuits, I address to you this communication, the object of which is to bring before the Society of Antiquaries a Roll of Arms comprised in the MS. No. 6589 of the Harleian Collection. Unfortunately nothing is known of the original, nor does it appear to whom it at any time belonged. The copy in the Harleian Collection was written in 1606 by Nicholas Charles, Lancaster Herald, who supposed the original to be of the time of Henry III. Judging from internal evidence, it is not quite so early; yet it should seem to have been not later than about 1280. It will be seen from the copy which follows, that it consisted of about 180 coats, comprising the arms of the emperors of Germany and Constantinople, and of most of the kings of Christendom, of several French and German dukes and counts, and about an equal number of English coats, among which are those of a few earls and several barons; and intermixed with the English arms are others with French names prefixed, possibly those of persons from the English dominions in the south of France.

A Roll substantially the same as this, except that it contains four additional coats, and that the names and arms are not in the same order, has been published in Leland's Collectanea, vol. ii. p. 610, Hearne's edition; but it is so inaccurately printed, as is evident on the face of it, that no reliance can be placed on any passage that is not supported by other authority. For this reason, doubtless, it has not received the attention it would otherwise have deserved. After a careful comparison, I cannot but consider that Roll as virtually a copy of the Roll first mentioned, and I shall in the following remarks refer to it as Leland's copy.

Although the errors in it have not been found on examination quite so many as might have been expected, yet, since the copy by itself is almost worthless, it might be well to publish the copy in the Harleian Collection, as the two throw light upon and occasionally explain and correct each other. From some peculiar misreadings which are evident in Leland's copy, and from which the Harleian is not altogether free, it appears highly probable that each of them was taken from a MS. not later than the fourteenth century. It is not clear whether the four coats which are in Leland's copy and not in the Harleian were intentional additions to the former, or accidental omissions in the latter. They are the arms of the King of Castile, the King of Acre, Alein Lasser, and Baldwin de Cryke. Beside these the arms of the Count of Barre were evidently omitted by mistake; and for some time I thought those of the Duke of Brabant and John de Brus were absent, they are so nearly worn off from the bottom of the page. In both copies the language in general appears older than the orthography.

From the diversities in the spelling and in the language of the blason in the Harleian copy it seems evident that either the transcriber, or some one whom he followed, did not pretend to copy literatim, but only to make a copy that should be substantially correct. Not only tinctures but even heraldic expressions are sometimes in their English form.

Several Rolls of Arms of early date have been already published. The late Sir H. Nicolas edited one of the time of Henry III., another, a very ample and important one, of the time of Edward II., and a third of the time of Edward III. The second of these, and also the Roll of Boroughbridge, temp. Edw. II., had been already published by the Record Commissioners in the Appendix to the Parliamentary Writs, edited by Sir F. Palgrave. A Roll of the time of Richard II. has been edited by Mr. Willement; another of the time of Edward III. is printed in the Collectanea Topographica et Genealogica, vol. ii. p. 320; and two known as the Stepney and Dunstable Rolls, because they contain the arms of knights who were present at tournaments held at those places in 2 Edw. II. and 7 Edw. III. respectively, are printed in vol. iv. of that publication, pp. 63 and 389. Sir H. Nicolas, in the preface to the Roll of the time of Edward II. edited by him, pointed out the great use and importance of these documents as contemporary testimony, not only to the herald but also to the biographer and historian. Since he wrote, personal seals have very justly come to be more generally regarded as some of the most trustworthy heraldic evidences; and these Rolls enhance their value very greatly by supplying the tinctures of the arms on such seals, which the mediæval engravers did not attempt to indicate.

It is difficult to discover, or even conjecture, what led to the compilation of some of these Rolls. A few, such as the Stepney and Dunstable Rolls, and also the Boroughbridge Roll are lists of the names and arms of persons who were present on certain occasions. They were probably made out by heralds, and have something of an official character: others consist of the names and arms of persons who were not all contemporaries; these should seem to have been derived more or less from former lists or rolls, recollection, and oral testimony, and been prepared for their own use by heralds or others whose duty or interest it was to be informed on such subjects. Of Rolls of this kind the dates can be determined only approximately, and chiefly by the latest of the coats found in them and by coats that are known to have been discontinued. We may learn, perhaps, something as to how and why a few Rolls were compiled, from the deposition of one of the witnesses for Sir Richard Scrope, in the Scrope and Grosvenor controversy temp. Rich. II. Sir Robert Laton said that his father, who was an old man of the age of seventy, and had long served in foreign wars, and in time of peace at tournaments, commanded him to write in a schedule all the arms which he (the father) had learned from his ancestors, of the kings, princes, dukes, earls, barons, and the lords and knights and esquires whom he knew and remembered, and who came here and bore their names since the Conquest; among which he made him write down the arms of Sir Richard Scrope and several others. It is to be regretted that the language of this interesting deposition is not more precise.

The early Rolls sometimes consisted of coloured sketches of the arms, with the addition of the names of those who bore them, drawing being at that time an easier mode of recording the coats correctly than describing them, as heraldic language for some time wanted the technical perspicuity to which, under the name of blason, it afterwards attained. There is a Roll in the possession of this Society, the original of which was doubtless of the kind just mentioned; for, though it has been considered a Roll of the fifteenth century, I am convinced, by the forms of the charges as well as by the names of those whose arms they are stated to have been, that it is a copy made in the fifteenth century of a Roll prepared about the year 1300. I should therefore be very glad to see that Roll published in some form by the Society.

A Zürich Roll of the fourteenth century, which has been recently published, has the arms sketched and coloured without any blason. There is reason to believe that some Rolls of this sort, now lost, were copied, so to speak, in French blason and the coloured sketches omitted, when it had become easier to blason arms than to sketch and colour them. Where arms were so copied by two heralds there would be considerable diversities in the language employed. In a few cases, probably, Rolls which consisted only of the names and the blason of the arms have been copied at a later date, and coloured sketches of the arms added as illustrations.

Though the Harleian copy of the Roll under consideration contains, with the few exceptions before mentioned, the same names and arms as Leland's copy, the difference in the order of them is very great. In both the arrangement seems quite arbitrary. If all the persons whose arms are given in them were contemporaries who had been present on some one occasion, this difference, as well as some variations in spelling and language which exist, might be accounted for by supposing that there were two originals prepared by different heralds. But it is too evident that all the persons named were not contemporaries for that supposition to be admissible. The variations in spelling and language are such as might have arisen either from two persons having blasoned the same arms, or from successive transcribers having corrected or, as they thought, improved the orthography and form of the original blason. In a few instances one or two names and coats only are omitted, as if by accident, and they are afterwards inserted at another place. Much ingenuity might be employed in endeavours to account for the more important dissimilarities in the arrangement. It is, however, sufficient for our present purpose briefly to state that, seeing the two copies substantially agree, they had most likely, at some remote time, a common original, but were taken from two copies of later date, between which there existed, from some cause, the differences that have been noticed. In that common original the arms may have been sketched and coloured, as the mention of diaper on two occasions seems to indicate, or they may have been blasoned; but as to this we have no certain information.

Leland's copy has no intimation expressed as to the date of this Roll, but the heading or title of the Harleian copy speaks of the Roll as if it might have been compiled in the time of Henry III.; but whether this opinion was derived from internal evidence, or from the handwriting from which the transcriber copied, is uncertain.

There are several coats which, on a first survey of the contents, certainly suggest that as the period of its compilation. Such are the arms of the Earls of Albemarle, Chester, Warwick, Pembroke, and Winchester; for the families which respectively bore those arms and enjoyed those earldoms failed in the reign of Henry III., the last of them in 1264. Other persons are named who also died in that reign. William de Valence, who was created Earl of Pembroke in or about 1255[a] is styled Counte de Valence. Possibly he may have been so called after that event, as the Earls of Surrey were called Earls of Warenne. But there is a foreign coat that absolutely forbids our assigning an earlier date than 1263 to the original, which is that of the King of Sicily; for it cannot be carried further back than that year, when Charles of Anjou, the brother of Louis IX. of France, claimed the kingdom of Sicily. We cannot, however, ascribe even so early a date to this Roll. There are several persons mentioned in it who are not found bearing, at that time or previously, the coats attributed to them; but there are not, so far as I have been able to discover, the name and arms of any person who was not living and bearing such arms in or before 1277. Several seem to have been sons, or at least successors, of persons named in the Roll temp. Hen. III. edited by Nicolas; others to have been the same persons as are there mentioned. One rather remarkable circumstance may assist us in fixing the date within a few years after 1275. In that Roll are the arms of William Bardolf, "d'azur a trois quintefueiles d'or," and those of Thomas his son, "autiel a croiselets d'or." At that time semy of crosslets was not an uncommon mark of cadency for younger sons. In this Roll we have "Thomas Bardulfe, d'azure poudre a croisel d'or 3 quintefoiles d'or; William, son frere, d'azure trois quintefoiles d'or." The latter is the pure coat; and therefore Thomas appears to have had a father and a brother both named William, and heads of the family. We find in Dugdale a William Bardolf who died in 1275, and was succeeded by a son William. No other issue is there mentioned; but, as this is the only instance of a William succeeding a William, either immediately or even otherwise within a few years, it is highly probable that the Thomas named in both Rolls was the son of the former of these two Williams. It may therefore be reasonably inferred that this Roll was not compiled before 1275, when William the father died. As nothing has been discovered that requires a later date for it, I conclude that it was prepared only a few years after that time; and on these grounds I have come to regard its date as being about 1280.

The arms of England, it will be observed, are not quartered with those of France, as they would have been after 1339. The arms of Hainault are not those so well known in this country through Queen Philippa, which were assumed by her grandfather in 1299, but the ancient coat, chevrony or and sa., which had been discontinued some years before. The arms of the Earl of Cornwall are not those of Gavaston, who was advanced to that earldom in 1308, but those of Earl Edmund, who was the only son of Richard King of the [a] See Rymer, i. pp. 297, 324. He is called Earl of Pembroke in the latter place but not in the former.

Romans, and died without issue in 1300. For Poitiers or Poitou there is the rare coat of Alfonse, brother of Louis IX., who was created Count in 1241, and died without issue in 1271. So little as that coat was known here, it is not likely it would have had a place in a Roll compiled many years after the latter event. The arms attributed to Geoffrey de Segrave are those which are mentioned in the Siege of Carlaverock, as having been discontinued by the father of the Nicholas de Segrave who was in the expedition celebrated by that poem. The banner of the Temple, as well as that of the Hospital, is given, as if both orders were then existing. Llewellin ap Griffith, whose arms are in this Roll; and his brother David, were the last Welsh princes who ruled in the Principality; the former was slain in 1282.

A few coats claim notice on their own account. Foremost among these is the early example of the double-headed eagle for the Emperor of Germany, associated with the single-headed eagle for the King of Germany. The use of the former coat, and also this distinctive appropriation of the two, have been generally considered to have commenced about the end of the fourteenth century. The same coats, however, and apparently with the same appropriation of them, occur in a rich heraldic window in York Minster, the probable date of which is about 1307.[a] It is not to be supposed the glass-painter would have introduced them there unless he had understood that such a use of them had been for some time prevalent. That the double-headed eagle was known in this country, as the armorial bearing of the Emperor of Germany, several years before the date assigned to this Roll, is apparent from a MS. copy of M. Paris's Historia Minor, in the British Museum, of about 1250, and believed to have been the author's own copy; in which, among numerous heraldic illuminations, this eagle occurs several times unmistakeably for the Emperor of Germany.[b] It may not be irrelevant to mention that the Grand Interregnum, during which there was no Emperor, extended from 1256 to 1273-4, when it was terminated by the election of Rudolf of Hapsburg, and the recognition of him by the Pope. The arms

[a] In the Archæological Journal, vol. xvii. p. 22, is a minute description of the glass in that window; and near the end are some remarks on the early use of the eagle with two heads.

[b] My attention was directed to these very early examples of the heraldic use of the eagle with two heads for the Emperor of Germany by Sir Frederic Madden. The illuminations in that copy of the Historia Minor of M. Paris are so exceedingly curious and interesting, especially in regard to early heraldry and mediæval usages, that it is extremely desirable the printed copy of it about to be published under the sanction of the Master of the Rolls should be enriched with woodcuts of these unique sketches, which are believed to be by the author himself. This might be done at no great cost, and it could hardly be considered other than a judicious expenditure.

ascribed to the Kings of Bohemia, Cyprus, Armenia, Denmark, Norway, and Portugal differ essentially from those borne by the Kings of those countries in later times. Whatever may be the fact as to the others, those attributed to Portugal must, I think, be erroneous, being "gulez poudre turells d'or vn labell d'azure," which have a great resemblance to the ancient arms of Poitou with a label; whereas the arms of Portugal, as early at least as 1216, were five escutcheons in cross each charged in like manner with as many plates, as appears by a seal in Vredius. The castles in the modern arms of Portugal were derived from the marriage of Alphonso III. with Beatrice of Castile in 1256.

Several of the foreign coats I have not been able to identify. The families that bore them may have failed early, and have not been important enough to have had their arms transmitted to posterity in the French printed collections.

It seems hardly possible even to conjecture what gave rise to this Roll. That the compiler was an Englishman may be inferred from the spelling of Wandome and Waldemode, to mention no other words. Had he attended Prince Edward in his crusade, we should have had more names of persons who took the cross on that occasion. If he had served in the wars here and on the continent, in which the English were engaged, and was, say, sixty years of age in 1280, he might in all probability have recollected at that time a large number of the coats comprised in the Roll, and he might easily have learned the rest from his associates. It is not improbable that in making out a list of arms in that way the compiler would have sometimes named the persons whom he remembered bearing the arms, instead of those by whom they were borne when he was writing. It seems, however, strange in any view of the matter, that so many well-known coats of distinguished English nobles should have been omitted, especially those of the Earls of Lancaster, Gloucester, Surrey, Lincoln, Oxford, and Arundel.

In the following copy from the Harleian MS. the abbreviated words have been extended, and the numbers in brackets have been added for facility of reference in the Index. Some different, and for the most part more correct, readings from Leland's copy are given in the notes; but it has not been my object to point out all the variations in that copy, as they are very numerous, and many of them are manifest errors.

I remain,
Ever yours truly,
WESTON S. WALFORD.

The Coppy of a very antient Rolle, made, as may bee supposed, in the tyme of K. H. 3.[a]

[2.] L'Empereur de Constantinople, gules crusuly d'or vn crois passant[b] d'or a 4 rondells d'or in les 4 quarters et in chescun rondell vn croiseè.[c]

[17.] Le Roy de Man, gulez a trois iambes armes argent.[f]

[18.] Le Roy de Portugall, gulez poudre turells d'or vn labell d'azure.[g]

[a] The heading to Leland's copy is, "The Copy of an ould Roule of Armes." In the following Notes that copy is referred to by the letter L.

[b] This term, crois passant, occurs in other early Rolls, though I do not remember to have met with it in any glossary or treatise on heraldry. It should seem to have been the plain cross, and it is so figured in the original of the Roll printed in Collectanea Topogr. et Gen., ii. p. 320. It may have been equivalent to Passion cross, i.e. the Latin cross; for on the long shields of the thirteenth century the plain cross had nearly that form. The term crois (simply) will be seen, however, to occur also when the same charge must in all probability have been intended. The use of the term crois passant is an indication that the original blason of this Roll was an early one, though the spelling has been in many places modernised.

[c] un Croysille. L.

[g] See p. 7 as to this coat.

[22.] Le Countee de Poiteres, party d'azure et de gulez l'azure poudre a florettes d'or le gulez poudre a turells d'or.

[25.] Le Countee de Abrenes, chequy d'or et d'azure vn border gulez.[c]

[29.] Le Contee de Barre, d'azure poudre a floretes d'or vn labell gulez poudre a circle d'or.[e]

[c] The arms are those of Dreux. The name probably had been misread.

[d] No doubt d'Eu was intended; see L. The arms are those of the Counts of Eu of the family of Brienne.

[e] These were not the arms of Barre, but seem intended for those of Artois, circle being substituted for castels. Accordingly in L. we find as follows:—

Le counte de Bar Dazur pudre a croisile dor a deus bars de mere.

Le counte Dartoys dazur pudre a florette dor a une labeu de goules pudre a circle dor.

[g] Doubtless for Vendome.

[h] Perhaps for Soissons. In support of this conjecture I may mention that L. has Messons or Sessons, and that there was a capital S of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries very like an M ; whence the story of the monk who would read Mumpsimus for Sumpsimus. At least one example of a like mistake occurs in the sequel of this Roll, where Manford has been substituted for Sanford. There are several such errors in L. If the name in the text should be Soissons, the arms are with a brisure.

[40.] Le Countee de Champanie, d'azure vn bend d'argent cousteces d'or diapres.[b]

[42.] Le County de Joeny,[c] gulez vn egle d'argent.

[44.] Le Countee de Guerd, gulez vn bend d'argent a listes d'or.[d]

[46.] Le Countee de Rummesvile, d'or trois roses harges oue 3 roses vert.[f]

[47.] Le Counteè de La petit piere, d'or vn cheif gulez vn cheverone argent sur le cheif.[g]

[48.] Le Conte Monioye, argent vn egle de veyre.

[49.] Le Contee de Leonsteine, argent vn leon rampant gules coronne d'or sous vn mole[h] d'azure.

[b] This mention of diapres favours the opinion that the arms in the original Roll were drawn and coloured.

[c] The MS. has in the margin Polony. A writer in Notes and Queries, N. S. vol. xiii. p. 131, has mistaken this name for Toeny; but it is no doubt an old form of Joigny. The arms are those of Joigny de Bellebrune.

[f] This reading is evidently erroneous: probably for roses harges should be read rosers charges. L. has the name Rampsuile, and the arms dor a treis rosers sur chek une roser une rose chek une roser verte.

[g] This coat has undergone a remarkable change: the modern blason of it is "de gueules un chevron d'argent a la plaine d'or"; the plaine being only one-ninth of the field in base. Thus the chief and its chevron have come to occupy eight-ninths of the field.

[i] Atholl. Asceles was the family name or surname.

[56.] Le Countee de la March, burulee de argent et d'azure de vn menue burules.

[61.] Le Countee de Monte, argent vn leon rampant gulez la cowe croise coronne d'or vn laber d'or.[c]

[73.] Le Duk de Breban, sable vn leon rampant d'or.[f]

[74.] Le Duk de Austrich, gules vn fesse d'argent.

[c] a une labeu dazur. L. The r of laber in the MS. may have been a slip for v.

[f] This name and coat are at the bottom of a column of the MS., and almost worn off. With the aid of L. I read the fragments of the letters as above. Breban here, doubtless, means Brabant.

[81.] Guiliam de Breynin, d'or troiz peuz de gulez.[a]

[88.] Son frere, autel a vn cantell d'ermine.

[95.] Peris Pigott, d'azure siz merloz d'or vn bend engrele d'or.

[99.] Le Counteè de Cornewaile, d'argent vn leon rampant gulez coronne d'or border sable besanteè.

[103.] Le Counte de Le Ille, gules trois barres d'or diaspres.[b]

[a] Azure is added after gulez as if instead of it, and in the margin Guy de Bryen, apparently by a later hand. In L. the name is Brequyn. William de Brechin was no doubt intended: he bore, Or three piles gules; and died 1284.

[109.] Garin de Bassingburne, geronne d'or et d'azure.
[110.] Thomas Bardulfe, d'azure poudre a croisel d'or 3 quintefoiles d'or.
[111.] William son frere, d'azure trois quintefoiles d'or.
[112.] Fouk de Kerdeston, gulez vn sautour engrelle d'argent.
[115.] Eustache de Balioll, gulez a vn faux escocheon d'argent.
[116.] Jehan de Plescy, d'argent a trois mullettes[b] percees gulez.
[117.] Walter Belechamp, escartelle d'or et gulez vnd bend gulez.
[118.] Guy de Rochford, escartelle d'or et gules.
[119.] John de Berner, escartelle d'or et vert vn labell gulez.
[120.] Raffe de Camois,[c] d'or al cheif gulez trois gastells d'argent.
[121.] Walter Malduist, d'argent a deux barres de gules.
[122.] Ernauld de Boyes, d'argent a deux barres et vn canton gulez.
[123.] Ingram de Merke, gulez vn leon rampant d'argent.[d]
[124.] Walter Martell, gules trois martells d'argent.
[125.] Geoffry de Gaunt, barre d'or et d'azure vn bend gulez.
[126.] Waren de Montchensy, d'or a 3 escocheons barry de veire et de gulez.
[128.] Robert de Mortymer, barry d'or et de vert florettee de l'un et l'autre.
[130.] Hugh Bigot, gules vn leon passant d'or.
[131.] Rauff Bassett, palee d'or et gulez in vn cantell d'argent vn crois pateè sable.
[134.] Roger de Somery, d'or a deux leons d'azure.
[135.] Hugh Seingeine, gulez 3 rouells d'or vng danseè d'or en cheif.
[136.] Geffry Tregoz, d'or deux gemells et vn leopard in cheif gulez.
[137.] Geffrey de Segrave, sable a trois garbes d'argent.

[a] Manford L., but no doubt for Sanford or Samford; probably the Nicholas mentioned in the Roll temp. Hen. III. edited by Nicolas, p. 11.

[b] In the margin is anulettes credo; which is probably correct. See Roll temp. Hen. III. p. 5.

[c] In the MS. this name is written Ca mois, and has been read la mois. L. has Camoys, which is no doubt correct.

[140.] William Boyvile, escartelle d'or et sable vn leon passant gulez en le pre . . . . . [cantell.][a]

[141.] Jehan de Brus, d'or 3 cheverones gules vn border d'azure indentez.[b]

[142.] Roger de Mortymer, barry d'or et d'azure al cheif palee al cantel geronnè vn escocheon d'argent.

[146.] Geffrey Genevile, d'azure al cheif d'ermine vn leon recoupe de gulez en le azure trois bresses d'or.

[a] So much of this coat as followed pre is missing. When complete the conclusion was probably premier cantell. L. has 6. cantel dor, the 6 being, I suppose, a mistake for en, as the like occurs there again and again.

[b] This name and coat are at the bottom of a column, and nearly worn off; but with the aid of L. I read the fragments of the letters as above. In the margin opposite the name are a few words I cannot read, being almost obliterated.

[c] L. has Augeuyn; possibly for Angevyn.

FINIS.

[a] Creseques L. Cresecques of Artois bore, "D'azure à deux tierces d'or au chef du même."

[b] le labiau L. Some partition seems omitted. Bauçay of Poitou bore, Or a cross ancre gules. Le labyn was probably a soubriquet, possibly for le lambin. In the margin is written, "Ingham's cote."

[c] S. Marc of the Isle of France bore, Gules a bend engrailed argent.

[e] Basseges or Basseches L. Basoches of Artois bore, Gules 3 pallets vair on a chief or a fleur-de-lys sable.

[g] Bertrant L.

NOTE.

The Harleian MS. 6589, in which the above roll is contained, appears to be entirely in the handwriting of Nicholas Charles, Lancaster Herald, and from two dates in different parts of the book to have been chiefly compiled in the years 1606 and 1607. The following is a list of the contents derived principally from a table given by Charles himself, and with references to his original folios :—

1. "Edward the First's knights" (f. 1–16).

2. "A Roll intituled the Names and armes of great lordes at a battaile" (f. 17, 18).

These two articles form a copy of the well-known Roll temp. Edw. II., printed in Parliamentary Writs, 410; and by Nicolas. 8vo. Lond. 1828. (Papworth, N.)

3. Roll of the Tournament at Dunstable, 2 Edw. II. (f. 19, 20). Printed, from another copy, in Collectanea Topog. iv. 61, as the Roll of the Tournament at Stepney. (Papworth, L.)

4. Roll of the Battle of Falkirk, 26 Edw. I. (f. 21–24). Believed to be unpublished. (Papworth, H.)

5. Roll of Knights on Monday before the Nativity of our Lady (f. 25, 26). (Papworth, M.)

6. Knights made at the Siege of Calais, 21 Edw. III. (f. 29, 30). (Papworth, R.)

7. Roll in the custody of Sir Richard St. George, Norroy (f. 31, 32). A fragment of the Roll temp. Henry III., published by Nicolas. 8vo. Lond. 1829. (Papworth, B.)

8. Roll of the time of Henry III. (f. 33–36). That printed above. (Papworth, C.)

9. Karlaverock Roll, anno 1300 (f. 38, 39). (Papworth, K.)

10. Roll in trick in custody of Sir Richard St. George (f. 47-58). Commonly called Charles' Roll. Printed in the following communication, No. II. (Papworth, E.)

11. Jennings' Roll (f. 61–95). Partly printed, from a copy in the College of Arms, by Nicolas, as a Roll temp. Edward III. 8vo. Lond. 1829. (Papworth, Y.)

12. Roll temp. Edw. III. or Rich. II. at end of Jennings' Roll (f. 89–95). (Papworth, X.)

13. Tournament of Dunstable, 2 Edward II. (f. 99–104). Another copy of No. 3. (Papworth, L. bis.)

14. Roll temp. Edw. I., in custody of Mr. John Guiliams, Portsmouth (f. 105–107). In trick. (Papworth, J.)

15. "A Rolle in suits of ordinaries without any title" (f. 301–308). This is another copy of a portion of Jennings' Ordinary. See above, No. 11.

16. "A Rolle in blazone without any title" (f. 309, 310). A single leaf, not in Charles' handwriting.

17. A leaf not in Charles' handwriting (f. 311, 312), containing the concluding 51 coats of Dunstable Roll, 7 Edw. III., printed in Collectanea Topog. iv. 389.

18. Another copy of the Karlaverock Roll, No. 9 (f. 315—319).

19. Names and arms of knights at siege of Calais, 11th April, 18 Edw. III. to 18th Nov., 21 Edw. III. (f. 320, 321). Printed by Mores, 4to, Oxford, 1749. (Papworth, Q.)

20. An inserted sheet, containing 49 coats from the Roll of Acre (f. 322, 323). (Papworth, A.)

21. Index of names in Charles' handwriting.

22. Supplementary index in another hand, chiefly to Nos. 13, 14, and 16—20, not included in the first index.

From the index and table of contents it is probable that there were never any leaves with writing between f. 107 and f. 301.

A. W. F.

Two Rolls of Arms of the Reign of King Edward the First; with some Prefatory Remarks by CHARLES SPENCER PERCEVAL, Esq., LL.D., F.S.A.

The first of the two following rolls, the entire blazon of which has never before appeared in print, has for many years been preserved in the Library of the Society of Antiquaries. How or when it came into their possession does not appear, and the only fact that has been ascertained as to its previous history is, that about the year 1610 it was in the custody of Nicholas Charles, then Lancaster Herald, to whose pains we owe the preservation of the second roll, known of late by his name, and now also published for the first time.

The first-mentioned roll is entered in the Catalogue of the Society's MSS., printed in 1816, under the head of "Rolls, Charters, &c." as follows:—"17. A Roll of Arms of English Nobility, Knights, &c. emblazoned on vellum. Apparently of the fifteenth century."

Early in 1863 the attention of Mr. W. S. Walford was called to this manuscript, and in his paper read on the 12th of February in that year,[a] he took occasion to remark as follows:—"Though this has been considered a roll of the fifteenth century, I am convinced, by the forms of the charges, as well as by the names of those whose arms they are stated to have been, that it is a copy made in the fifteenth century of a roll prepared about the year 1300. I should, therefore, be very glad to see that roll published in some form by the Society." It was in consequence of these observations that the document was placed in the hands of the present writer, in order to prepare for the press a description, or in heraldic language the blazon, of the arms comprised in it. This roll is composed of four strips of vellum sewn together at the ends, and forming a continuous sheet eight feet and a half long by eleven inches and a half wide, affording space for 486 shields of arms arranged in 54 rows of 9 shields each. The arms are neatly drawn and coloured throughout, the name of the bearer being (except in a few cases, where a blank occurs,) written underneath the coat, in a hand corresponding with that used in deeds of the fifteenth century. It may be observed that, though the handwriting may be, and probably is, of that date, yet the shape of the shields is not so, being of the longer and more pointed form in use in the latter part of the thirteenth century. Such shields were convex; and in the representation of the ordinaries formed by diagonal lines, such as the bend and the saltire, we find in the present roll, as also occasionally in seals of the time, that the outlines of these ordinaries are curved, as if to indicate the convexity of the shield. This is, I believe, one of the peculiarities to which Mr. Walford alludes, in the passage extracted above, as tending to show that our roll is a copy from an earlier original. To this evidence may be added the remarkable drawing of the fur "vair," the pieces not being of the bell shape now usually given to them, but more resembling that invention of a later date called "potent-counter-potent," or "vairy-cuppy." That our roll was a copy is, I think, made still more probable, not only by the occasional blunders (not mere varieties of spelling) committed in the surnames, as, for instance, Hoderugo miswritten for Coderugge, Trevarner for Crevequer, Hakeruz for Bakepuz, where, as it would seem, the name was unfamiliar to the copyist's ear and indistinct to his eye; but also by occasional omissions of the first or of the final letter of a surname, which lead us to infer that in such places the original was illegible.

On the whole, the roll is in good preservation: the colours being generally distinct, and the writing legible, except in some places, where exposure to the weather, or the operation of some fluid, has produced patches of a nearly uniform yellowish tint upon the originally uncoloured surface of the vellum, difficult occasionally to distinguish from the transparent yellow colour used for the heraldic tincture Or. The vellum is left plain where the field or the principal charge is Argent; but a minor charge of that tincture (as a label) occurring surtout is sometimes painted over the primary bearing, or the field, with a metallic pigment of a heavy body, originally representing silver, but which, having undergone chemical change, has by this time turned to a colour difficult to distinguish (in the absence of extrinsic evidence), from the blue body-colour used in similar places for Azure. Hence, a few hesitations between Argent and Or, and between Argent and Azure, which will be noticed in the following pages.

A copy, in trick, of this roll exists in Harl. MS. No. 6137, where it will be found at folio 45 recto, thus headed:—

"This is the trewe copeie of an ould Roll donñ in colleres upon parchment of those noblemen and gentlemen that lyued in the time of Edward the firste, Remaining in the custody of Mr. Nich. Charles Lancaster Herald."

This copy, which cannot be later than 1613, when Charles ceased to be Lancaster Herald, gives a very faithful representation of the original, preserving some tinctures, and restoring some names, which since 1613 have become partially effaced or illegible. It has been carefully collated for the purposes of the present publication.

The other of the two rolls of arms which form the subject of these remarks is Charles's (or, more properly, St. George's) Roll. It exists, so far as at present appears, only in two tricked copies among the Harleian MSS., of which one is in the same volume (No. 6,137), and by the same hand as the above-mentioned copy of the Society's Roll, while the other occurs in the volume No. 6,589 (whence also we have the roll edited by Mr. Walford), and is, no doubt, the work of Charles himself. This copy is prefaced by the note, "This Roll, on the other side, was copied by the original which Mr. Norry [i.e. Richard St. George] lent me Añ. Dñi. 1607. Nicholas Charles." There are several slight discrepancies between these two copies, principally as to spelling of names; Charles's own copy appearing to be a trifle less particular in preserving orthographical peculiarities.

I have already said that the roll from which these two copies were taken does not appear to be any longer in existence. It was probably a document bearing a close outward resemblance to the Society's roll. Like it, it must have contained nine shields in a row. This arrangement is adopted in Charles's own copy, and that this is not arbitrary is sufficiently proved by the fact, that in two instances the order of the coats in the two copies differs, owing to one or other of the copyists having accidentally transposed a row of nine shields. (See Nos. 118 et seqq., 200 et seqq.)

Having been led to examine the contents of this roll with reference to that of the Society of Antiquaries, I found that they belonged almost exactly to the same period. Of the 677 coats which St. George's roll contains, nearly 300 are also to be found in that of the Society, agreeing in every respect as to blazon and the Christian- and sur-names of their bearers; while about 50 more coats occur in each Roll with variations, sometimes as to Christian names, at other times as to brizures, with other discrepancies of various degrees of importance. Each roll throws light on the other, particularly in the way of correcting the spelling of names, which in one or the other have sometimes become corrupted to the extent of unintelligibility. Finding that both rolls taken together would form a very large and important collection of arms of persons living at some time between 1240-5 (the date of the Roll of Arms of the reign of Henry III. edited by Sir N. H. Nicolas), and 1300, the date of the Karlaverock roll, and becoming strongly impressed with the desirability of publishing this contemporaneous body of early heraldry in a complete form, I resolved to write down the blazon of St. George's roll, in order to append it to my blazon of the roll of the Society.[a] To save space however, and needless repetition, I have in the copy which follows omitted the arms common to this roll and that of the Society, giving only the names, and for the blazon referring by numerals to the corresponding coats as they appear in the latter. It is hoped that this plan will not be found to produce any serious inconvenience.

I may here remark that Mr. J. W. Papworth has included the blazon of both these rolls, from the Harleian copies, in his valuable "Ordinary of British Armorials," which is now in the course of publication. He has there referred to St. George's roll by the letter E, and to the tricked copy of the Society's roll by the letter F, while the letter B is assigned to the Roll temp. Hen. III. mentioned above. This notation is convenient, and I have adopted it both in the sequel of these remarks and in my blazon of the two rolls.[b]

The historical value of such rolls as these much depends on the amount of the probability that they accurately hand down the blazon of the coat-armour really worn by the persons whose names they contain; and this probability is considerably affected by the amount of certainty with which, in any case, it can be shown that the roll was compiled during the lifetime or soon after the death of those persons. In order therefore to estimate the value of the two documents at present under our notice, we must first ascertain the period to which the names in each belong, and next endeavour to approximate to the respective dates of the compilations. For these purposes we must resort to internal evidence; and, though some of the facts to be derived from thence may perhaps bear on both branches of the inquiry, yet the two points are best kept distinct.

Now with regard, in the first place, to the period to which the names in each roll belong. I may state generally, what on particular examination will abundantly appear, that though neither roll relates entirely to persons who were all contemporaries, yet that the great majority of coats belongs to noblemen, knights, and [a] St. George's roll has 677, and the Society's roll 486 coats. Of these, about 350 are common to both. Deduct this number from 1163, the aggregate sum; the remainder, 813, is, approximately, the number of independent coats obtained from both rolls.

[b] Where various readings occur, my notation is as follows:—No. 17 denotes the reading of the Society's Roll; F, that of the copy in trick; E, that of the copy of St. George's roll, Harl. MS. No. 6137; E′, that of the copy No. 6589 in the same collection. Where the readings agree, F refers both to the Society's roll and to the tricked copy; E to both copies of St. George's roll.

gentlemen, principally with English names, who were living at some time between the years 1280 and 1300, or a few years later. The arms of many of the besiegers of Karlaverock, A.D. 1300, and of several or indeed most of those who signed the Barons' letter in the next year, appear in our rolls attributed either to the individuals themselves, or to the fathers of such of them as had recently succeeded to their parents' estates. Thus John de St.John, whose arms were Argent on a chief gules two mullets or, occurs in roll E. (230), and was himself at Karlaverock; while Roger de Lancaster (E. 264), who bore Argent two bars, on a canton gules a lion passant guardant or, died in 1298, leaving John his son and heir, who at the siege displayed the same coat. Again, the Walter de Beauchamp of roll F. (224), is to be identified by his arms, Gules a fess between six martlets or, with that Walter who fought at Karlaverock, and as "Dominus de Alcestre" signed the Barons' letter. Robert de Thony, who at the siege—

> "Escu blanc et baniere blanche > portoit, o la vermeille manche"—

had succeeded his father Ralf, to whom our roll (F. 79) assigns this coat, in 1294. These cases, selected at random, are a sample of what on examination will prove to be the staple of the contents of the rolls.

At the same time many names occur of persons who were dead some time before 1280. This is obvious on glancing at the list of earls which heads each roll. For instance, the very first coat in F, "Counte de Salesburi," is that belonging to William de Longespée, who died in 1226; while his male issue, who were deprived of the earldom, failed in 1256. The last Earl of Chester (Blundeville) who bore the three garbs (E. 16) died in 1232. It is needless to give further examples; and indeed these lists of earls are not peculiar to the rolls under discussion, but will be found in other similar compilations, as in the roll B, and in that called G by Mr. Papworth (Harl. MS. No. 6137), and by him dated about 1296. But besides the arms of extinct earls there will be found the names and arms of several other persons who died childless, or without male issue, prior to the time to which, as above stated, the mass of the entries belong; so that at that time there can have been no person of the same names entitled to such arms. I give five examples:—

1. In the roll B we have the arms of William de Cantelowe (Cantilupe), Gules three fleurs-de-liz or. The same coat in both our Rolls (E. 246, F. 60) is assigned to George de Cantlou. According to Dugdale, William de Cantilupe died in 1254, leaving George his only son and heir, who died in 1273 without issue. A sister and the issue of a deceased sister were his heirs.

2. John le Fitz Geffrey in roll B bears Quarterly or and gules a bordure vair, attributed in F. (65) to John le Fitz John. Now John Fitz Geoffrey died in 1256, leaving John Fitz John Fitz Geoffrey his son and heir, who was succeeded in 1258 by John Fitz John, who died without issue in 1276, but who must be the person named in F. In roll E. (80) the descent is carried one step further, by giving the same coat undifferenced to Richard Fitz John, who was brother and heir to the last-named John.

3. James de Audeley (F. 95) bears the plain Audley coat, Or, fretty gules; E. (105) giving the same arms to William de Audeley. Now James died without issue in 1272, and William his brother succeeded Henry the second brother on his death also without issue in 1275. That these names are rightly connected with the arms appears from the fact that they are assigned, plain, in the roll temp. Edw. II. to Nicholas, nephew of these three brothers, and who was then head of the house.

4. John the last Baron Beauchamp of Bedford, whose arms we have (E. 358), Quarterly or and gules a bend of the second, was slain at Evesham in 1265; his lands were forfeited, and he certainly left no issue that survived long, as under the Dictum de Kenilworth his sisters or their issue obtained restitution of his estates.

5. Similarly we find (F. 140) a coat assigned to the Lord of Dinawesbran, i. e. Dinasbrân Castle in North Wales, which must be referred to Griffith ap Madoc, called Lord of Dinasbrân, who, dying in 1270, left his children under age. Their possessions fell a prey to John, Earl of Warren, and Roger Mortimer, a younger son of Roger Mortimer of Wigmore, the guardians appointed by the King; as to which proceeding see Dugdale, under Mortimer of Chirke (a lordship which was part of the plunder); so that practically this name and arms became extinct in relation to the lordship of Dinasbrân, at Griffith's death.

Hence our rolls were, in all probability, compiled from recollection or information, much in the manner in which Mr. W. S. Walford considers the roll lately edited by him (ante, p. 8) to have been produced, and frequently, here as there, the author seems to have attributed a coat to the person whom he or his informant remembered bearing the arms, instead of to the individual entitled to them at the time of his writing. Thus, to add two instances occurring in both the present rolls. Francis or Franco de Boun (Sable three crescents or, E. 76, and probably F. 52), from the peculiarity of his Christian name, must be identified with Franco de Bohun of Midhurst, who died in 1272, leaving John his son and heir aged 26.[a] Walter de Colvill again, to whom the coat, Or, a fess gules, is assigned in all the three rolls B., E., (101), and F. (53), died in 1276, leaving Roger his son and heir, aged 25. Edmund, son and heir of Roger,[a] appears in the Roll temp. Edw. II. with the same arms; which establishes the identity.

[a] Esch. Edw. I. num. 39.

These instances might easily be multiplied, but to no very good purpose, as enough has probably been said with regard to the period to which the names in the two rolls belong; and if so, we may now proceed to the investigation of the date of compilation. By this time it will be clear, that, as the dates of death of the persons named range from 1226 to various years after 1301, it will be impossible to say how much time may have elapsed while the rolls were in progress. Either of them may have been the work of a month, or the result of collections extended over many years; and the most that can be done is to arrive at an approximation to the year in which each was finished. With this object in view, we may notice the following coats:—

1. That of Nicholas Segrave (E. 50, F. 72), Sable three garbs argent. This must be the father of John and Nicholas Segrave, who at Karlaverock bore the lion rampant in substitution for the garbs, a change which the rhymester informs us was made by Nicholas senior, and therefore before 1295, when he died.

2. That of Richard Talbot, who (E. 652) gives the old Talbot coat, Or five bendlets gules, while on his seal to the Barons' letter (1301) the arms are, A lion rampant within a bordure engrailed.

3. The arms of Henri de Perci (E. 110), Azure five fusils in fess or. A writer in Archæologia Æliana, vol. iv. p. 161 seqq., has demolished the common story that Joscelin de Louvaine, who died before 1191, took the name of Percy, but kept the lion rampant alleged to be his paternal coat; for in fact it was during the lifetime of his descendant Henry de Perci, brother and heir of John, both sons of another Henry, that the change in the arms is first noticed. The lion is on the seal of Henry de Perci the younger, attached to the Barons' letter, and the suggestion made by the writer just quoted, that the lion azure in a gold field was a coat assumed on his marriage with the daughter of the Earl of Arundel, differenced in tincture from that of his father-in-law, Gules a lion rampant or, is well worthy of attention, especially in connection with the circumstances that the seal of himself and that of the Earl of Arundel which are attached to the Barons' letter are "wonderfully similar." It is noticeable that he retained the tinctures of the old Percy coat, but reversed them. Our Henry may be either the son, or else the father, who did not die till about the 56th Hen. III., when, according to Dugdale, his widow had assignment of her dower. It is proper to remark that neither this case, nor that of Talbot, is a perfect instance of a disused coat, as later descendants, both of Talbot and Percy, reassumed the older bearings as quarterings; and indeed the modern Talbot coat will be found, No. [167], in the roll edited by Mr. W. S. Walford.

4. The old canting coat of Gorges, Argent a gurges or whirlpool azure (blazoned in B. roele d'argent et d'azur) will be found in E. (102) and F. (84), and attributed in all three rolls to a Ralph de Gorges. There were two of the name, father and son. The son at Karlaverock had dropped the old coat, and assumed Masculy (in modern heraldry lozengy) or and azure (Azure six mascles or, Roll temp. Edw. II.), probably the arms of Elena de Morville his mother, who was an heiress. This lozengy coat, assigned in F. to Worblinton or Worbleton, was, I may notice, successfully challenged in 1347 by Warburton of Cheshire, from Theobald Russel, called Gorges, a descendant, through an ultimate heiress, of the Ralph who was at Karlaverock.[a]

These cases, taken together, lead, I think, to the conclusion, that the compilation of neither roll was continued down to the date of the siege of Karlaverock or of the Barons' letter, and that it ceased most likely before 1295; to which may be added, that a careful comparison of the whole of the names and arms in the Karlaverock Roll, as well as of many coats occurring in the Roll temp. Edw. II., and also of the Calendar of Escheats, with the contents of the rolls E and F, has not brought to my notice a single case which would carry the date lower than that thus assigned.

As to the earliest possible date of the completion of the rolls, it would appear that neither of them was finished before 1278, in which year Theobald de Verdon succeeded his father John: for Theobald appears in both rolls (E. 102, F. 92), bearing without any mark of cadency the coat, Or, fretty gules, which in roll B is assigned to John. By similar reasoning it may be concluded that roll F was not finished before 1283, when Robert de Beauchamp of Hacche died, leaving John his son and heir, aged ten. The plain arms, Vair, assigned to Robert in roll B, are given to John in roll F (175). This coat does not occur at all in roll E.

If roll E stood alone, we might infer from the fact that Thomas de Berkeley there appears, No. 212, bearing the plain coat, Gules a chevron argent, used by his father Maurice (roll B), whose heir he was, that Maurice was dead when the name and arms were entered, and therefore that roll E was not completed before 1281, when he died. But in roll F (341) the field of Thomas's shield is semée of croslets; which brizure he certainly used in 1301, when he sealed the Barons' letter, and at Karlaverock, Maurice, son and heir apparent of our Thomas, bore this coat further differenced by a label, the crosses being patée, a form also expressly given to them in the Roll temp. Edw. II., and which, as is well known, is still used by this family. It must, therefore, be considered that the croslets have been omitted in roll E by accident.[a] Now, this powdering of croslets is most likely a "geratted" difference assumed by Thomas, who was not the eldest but the second son of Maurice, though he became his heir by the death of Maurice, his elder brother, who was slain in his father's lifetime at a tournament at Kenilworth in 1279; so that Maurice the father, for anything that appears to the contrary, may have been living when the entry was made in roll F, and, if the croslets were omitted by mistake in E, when roll E was being compiled.

[a] See Nicolas' Roll of Karlaverock, p. 336.

After an investigation of considerable extent, I am not able with any certainty to reduce the approximate limits of compilation beyond this point, namely, that F was not finished before 1283; E not before 1278; but that both were completed about 1295; probably rather before than after that year.

I have failed to detect anything like a chronological or scientific method in the arrangement of the coats in either roll, and am consequently disposed to think that the shields were filled up pretty much as the arms occurred to the memory of, or were suggested to, the compiler. In E there are certainly traces of attempts at arrangement according to artistic effect, not inconsistent however with the absence of more methodical composition. I allude to the alternate position of coats, alike either in principal tincture or in principal charge, which occurs in several places in E. Thus Nos. 94 and 96, with fretty coats, stand in the original immediately over 103 and 105, which exhibit the same charge. Nos. 227, 229, 231, and 333 are all checky shields placed alternately with coats containing dissimilar bearings. These instances might be multiplied, and the same or a similar system may in a less degree be observed in roll F.

In conclusion, I would state that care has been taken by frequent collation to insure accuracy; and would venture to express a hope that the present publication may be found of as much assistance and interest both to the historian and genealogist and to the lover of pure heraldry, as the rolls already printed have often proved.

[a] Against this is an assertion in Fosbroke's Smythe's Lives of the Berkeleys, page 110, that on the seal of Joan, wife to our Thomas, her husband's arms are given, a chevron without the crosses. But I have not seen an example or an engraving of this seal.

NOTE.

In the blazon of the two rolls following it is to be observed, that—

1. The label is always of five points.
2. Mullets always of six points, unless otherwise stated.
3. Barry above ten pieces is blazoned sans nombre.
4. Crusilly denotes semée of cross-croslets.
5. Fusils in fess or in bend are understood to be conjoined. It is exceedingly questionable whether anything beyond inadvertence or carelessness of successive draughtsmen has produced the distinction (if one exist at the present day) between these charges and a fess or bend fusilly. The primitive blazon of all, or very nearly all, these coats, was a fess or bend engrailed.

The abbreviations of the Christian names have been extended in conformity with the spelling used where they are written at length, except in ambiguous cases, where the contracted form has been preserved.

The numerals have been added for the convenience of reference. The smaller-faced figures used in the second (St. George's) roll refer to the corresponding numbers in the first roll.

162. Roger Pikard de Staundon [Stonden, F. in the second hand]. Gules, a fess between three escallops argent (quære or; arg. F.; the fess or, E. 316).

163. William de Birmingham. Azure a bend fusilly or.

164. Thomas de Moltone. Gules three bars argent.

165. Jon Dureuaspal. Vert three fleurs de lis or (the field azure, E. 249).

166. Joan de Piritone. Coat defaced. [Or a (pear?) tree vert, fructed gules, F.]

167. Simon Crombe. Ermine a chevron gules, on a chief of the last three escallops or.

168. Piers de Kekytemore. Gules. (There is now no trace of any charge; but F. gives three objects somewhat resembling adders nowed or, on the red field.)

169. Robert Giffarde? Or a cross fusilly sable.

170. Geffrai de Abetot. Per pale gules and vert two lions passant guardant argent.

171. Joan de Louet[oft, F.] Argent a lion rampant party per fesse gules and sable.

172. William de Stone. Argent a lion passant guardant sable.

173. Vert a fess or.

174. (In a later hand Narburgh. Narburgh in pencil, F. "Mo . . . de Morriton," E. 144.) Ermine a chief gules.

175. Johan Beauchamp. (Above the line, in a later hand, G? inket.) Vair.

176. [Sent Amand, F. in the second hand.] Or fretty sable on a chief of the second three bezants. (Almaricus Sent Amand, E. 165.)

177. Raf Pypard. Argent two bars azure, on a canton of the second a cinquefoil pierced or.

178. . (In a later hand, "Hewse, Iberle"?. anon. F.) Barry of six ermine and gules. (Henri Hese, E. 222.)

179. Robt. de Montoni. Azure a bend between six martlets or.

180. Roger de Somerey. Or two lions passant azure.

181. Hamo Hauteyn. [Mr. Papworth, at p. 288 of his Ordinary, blazons thus from the copy in trick, Harl. 6137, "Gules three bendlets (perhaps enhanced), the chief part of the two adjacent sides of the two lower bendlets indented (as if overlaid by three fusils of the first) or." With the exception that the bendlets are not enhanced, and that there are traces of a label argent over all, the tricking well represents the present appearance of the original in colours, and Mr. Papworth's blazon accurately describes the tricking; but I think that the painter has blundered, and, in endeavouring to correct his error, has produced this anomalous coat. Roll E. 432, attributes "Gules three bends or, a label argent," to Hamund Hancett, and this is most likely the coat intended here. Hauteyn seems to be the correct reading of the surname.]

 It will have been noticed that in several cases, both in E and in F, coats occur without names, or with incomplete surnames. Where such coats, anonymous in one Roll, were found duly named in the other, they have been referred to in the Index under the names so recovered. The following numbers are those of anonymous coats occurring in one or other Roll only, and therefore not admitting such identification:—

E.

90; 135; 151; 153; 306; 333 "Joan de S... ;" 382; 426 "Joan le ...brut;" 435; 459; 461; 530; 563.

F.

9; 40; 99 Jorge de .....; 100; 151; 173; 174; 272; 297 "Fuco de ;" 347 f "Raf le fitz;" 363 "Henri de;" 391; 417.

AN

ALPHABETICAL ORDINARY

OF ALL THE

COATS COMPRISED IN ROLLS C, F, AND E.

Note.—Whilst engaged in preparing my text of Rolls E and F for the press, I found it necessary to compile, for my own use, an Ordinary of the Coats contained in those two Rolls. Mr. Papworth having digested the whole of these Rolls in his book, of which the greater part has already appeared, it seemed hardly justifiable to encumber the pages of Archæologia by printing my own Ordinary there. At the same time it was thought that with the addition of the coats comprised in Roll C, the compilation might be acceptable to that limited number of persons specially interested in the subject, into whose hands the separate copies of the Rolls, and remarks thereon, might come. One hundred and twenty-five copies of the following pages have therefore been printed, for private distribution, at the joint expense of Mr. A. W. Franks, Mr. W. S. Walford, and myself.

Mr. Papworth's excellent arrangement has mostly been followed. In several instances a coat has been twice entered; once in its proper alphabetical order, and again in italics, either where the blazon is doubtful, or in order to bring one coat into juxtaposition with another, on which it either certainly is or may be conjectured to be founded.
